

June 11, 2020
10:00 AM
Big Horn County
COVID-19 Update/Response

For Immediate Release

Today, June 11, 2020 the Big Horn County Public Health Department received notification of another individual testing positive for COVID-19. This case is related to a recently reported case and is a male child.

Announcements placed on the official County sites are all verified by the state and in accordance with national Incident Command Systems models. This site and facebook pages for Big Horn County, Big Horn County Emergency Management and the Big Horn County Public Health Office are the only official sites for releasing information.

This is the 9th resident of Big Horn County who has tested positive to date. This underscores the need to continue safe exposure reduction practices as have been emphasized throughout this emergency. Community support and compliance is imperative at every level to protect our citizens. Safety is up to you.

Information regarding COVID-19 is available throughout the area including the County and Public Health Department websites and Facebook. Local agencies will continue to provide community education about mitigation efforts such as social distancing. Evidence from other affected cities and countries clearly shows that areas that initiated mitigation measures prior to widespread community transmission are significantly better able to address their community's needs.

For more Wyoming information on COVID-19, wohs.us is a one stop shop for COVID-19 information.